Four Bungalows flowing in their surrounding

These small Lebanese houses trace back from 1900 with their purely Lebanese architectural shows the perfect integration with the landscape and its response to the natural aesthetics.

We kept the original way these houses were integrated and you will notice how they were built into the very steep mountain slopes exposing its front side to the panoramic views of the mountain valleys or the seaside.

While restoring these houses, we maintained the original internal open space with beautiful arcades, and the original stone that dresses the exterior. The trademark of these houses, now The INN Bungalows, feature windows in the shape of arches that welcome Byblos sunshine to the interior and are characterized by an elegant blue color iron door and windows
